

TEENS@GRAHAM

YOUNG ARTISTS PROGRAM

Teen Pre-Professional Division

The Teen Pre-Professional Division is designed for technically advanced students interested in post-secondary study or careers in dance. Classes include Graham Technique®, Ballet, Contemporary, Creative Workshop, and Repertory studies. Students learn and perform one of Graham's masterworks and have a new work created for them by one of NYC's established choreographers. Teens will attend Martha Graham Dance Company open rehearsals and performances, and will participate in a year-end Teens@Graham Showcase. Other performance opportunities arise throughout the year.

Teen Artists Division

The mission of the Teen Artists Division is to further teens' development as individuals and as artists. The core of the program is the Creative Workshop, in which teens learn the craft of choreography, develop their individual artistic voices, and create their personal movement signature. Using the Graham Technique® and Repertory as a foundation for study, the program serves as a platform for personal and creative exploration. Each semester teens will attend two special events and are introduced to significant artistic and intellectual movements. Teens are invited to attend Martha Graham Dance Company open rehearsals and performances, and will participate in a year-end Teens@Graham Showcase.

Teen Training Division

The Teen Training Division reflects the Martha Graham School's dedication to providing strong technical training for teens. Classes are offered in Graham Technique®, Contemporary, and Ballet, with the objective of generating greater physical capacity, movement articulation, and strong technique. Teens will be invited to attend Martha Graham Dance Company open rehearsals and performances.

Admission to the Young Artists Program is open by audition or invitation only.
